“ Mommy, Aunty, I can't describe the pain iam going through. Walking memory lane, met Ngosa in 1993 and you instantly became my mummy. I remember you getting ready for work, working for ministry of finance, on weekends you spent time gardening your flowers and chatting with Aunty Sally Yamba your next door neighbor and her Sister Dr Kaseba who later became the first lady of your country Zambia,this is hard

“ I remember every Saturday after church, we always used to visit Grandma. No matter how much pain she was in, she always used to smile and have a welcoming spirit. She was down-to-earth and knew how to make you laugh all the time.

Even on her hardest days, she found a way to lift us up. Her hugs were healing, her stories unforgettable, and her wisdom—timeless. She didn't need fancy words or big gestures to show her love; just being in her presence reminded us of what truly mattered—family, faith, and joy in the little things.

Grandma taught me that strength isn't always loud. Sometimes, it's quiet resilience, a soft laugh in hard times, or the way she made sure we never left her house without a full heart

Though she may be gone from this earth, her spirit lives on in each of us. In the way we care for others, and in the love we share.

Thank you, Grandma, for everything. We'll carry you with Ous, always.

- Sincerely Shailyn Muyaba
