“ Clay was a brother, best friend, a partner in all things growing up together in middle school and HS. Sitting in his room waiting for the bus, contemplating if cars would fly by the year 2000, at the same time madly in love with the Honda and rims we saw in a magazine. 12-20 hours a day together and all times of night when parents thought we were asleep. I ran everything by him, good or bad he always gave it to me straight. He was wise behind his years. I grew up in that house with his dad and Keely. "Missed" the bus one day and dad made us lay tile in the living room.. came out crooked but we were proud. Many memories, and a lot of pain in his passing. Wish I would have caught back up with you sooner brother. You'll be missed, and you'll be remembered. When I see you again maybe cars will be flying for us. - Swan
