“ To my little roommate Jackie you welcome me from the first day I came up to the fourth floor. You invited me into your home with all your pictures on the walls you looked out for me when I went out and I came home too late you would ask me where I was and if I was okay and you always thought to bring me a can of soda or a cookie. You took really good care of me. I won't forget our time together here at Norwood

“ I knew Jackie from being my wife's roommate at Norwood. She was pretty cool. Loved coloring her pictures, her computer and reading. But most of all she loved watching Young Leonard. I'll miss her waving hello, telling me to drive carefully, and how she enjoyed bringing cookies and soda to my wife. It brings comfort knowing she's at peace now. Rest well, Jackie, you mattered to quite a few people.
